Introduction

This directory provides information related to the Iowa Computer-Assisted Network sites and their associated libraries.

The Iowa Computer-Assisted Network (ICAN) is an interlibrary loan network which uses IBM-type computers to generate and fill requests for library resources. An average of 600 transactions are generated a day over ICAN with an average monthly fill rate of about 85 percent.

There are presently 34 ICAN sites. Twenty-seven of these sites receive and generate interlibrary loan requests specific to their own organization. (Representative examples include Grinnell College and Burlington Public Library). These ICAN sites are contacted directly by other ICAN libraries with interlibrary loan requests specific to that library's collection. The University of Iowa School of Library and Information Science is an ICAN site for the purpose of receiving and responding to reference questions posed by libraries. This back up reference service is funded by the State Library.

The other six ICAN sites not only fill and generate requests specific to their own organizations, but also serve as "coordinating centers" for libraries in their regions. Six of the seven regional library systems in the state provide this service. In the East Central, North Central, Northeastern, Northwest, and Southeastern regions, the regional office staff handle the interlibrary loan requests for their own organization and the libraries they serve. The Southwest Regional Library System contracts with the Council Bluffs Public Library to serve as a coordinating center for libraries in the Southwest region.

There is no ICAN coordinating center in the Central Iowa Regional Library System. The Des Moines Public Library is an independent ICAN site and can be contacted via ICAN for requests specific to its collection, but it does not serve as a coordinating center.

The ICAN system is closely linked to the Iowa Locator. The Iowa Locator is a materials location tool published quarterly in compact disc (CD ROM) format. The 299 Iowa Locator site libraries in the state can search the Locator database, find the record of needed material, note the Locator/ICAN two letter code, and request the material over the ICAN network.

As an aid to this process, the first part of this directory lists libraries accessible through the ICAN system alphabetically by Locator/ICAN Code. The second part of this directory contains the lending policies of the ICAN sites. It is followed by an appendix which lists the Iowa libraries served via ICAN by the six participating regions.
